1. The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-5,8-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Gasperi et al. (4,762,007).

As to claims 1,5,8, Gasperi discloses a torque measuring apparatus including a plurality of resolvers 16,18, an excitation winding 20, and multiple output windings being connected serially (col. 3, lines 22+) and processing means 24 for output signals processing to determine angle or position (col. 4, lines 65+) (Fig. 1).

As to claim 2, the phases of output coils are shifted 90 degrees (Col. 3, lines 8+).

As to claims 3,4,9, the outputs are connected to the processor 24 (fig. 1).

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 6-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gasperi et al. in view of applicants admitted prior art (AAPA).

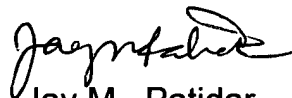

Gasperi discloses a torque measuring apparatus as explained above except for the equations as set forth. It is well known in the art to find the deviation angle from the difference of rotation angles of the rotors (Note page 2 of the specification, figs 4-5). Consequently, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the device of Gasperi to have included these processing features as taught by applicants admitted prior art to extend the range of the detector and maximize the output signals thus to enhance the sensitivity of the device.

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Note PTO-892.
